

Higher Education Emergency Relief Fund (HEERF) Student Grant Report

- The Charleston School of Law acknowledges that it has signed and returned to the U.S. Department of Education the Certification and Agreement required to receive HEERF II funding for student grants. As an institution, Charleston School of Law is required to distribute 100% of the funds to eligible students in the form of grants.
- $233,760 is the amount of HEERF II funding allotted to Charleston School of Law under the Coronavirus Response and Relief Supplemental Appropriations Act, 2021 (CRRSAA), and is earmarked for distribution to eligible students.
- There are an estimated 445 students potentially eligible to participate and thus potentially eligible to receive grants under CRRSAA.
- As of June 21, 2021, 285 students have received HEERF II funding under CRRSAA.
- As of June 21, 2021, $236,155 has been issued to eligible students. Charleston School of Law has exhausted its HEERF II allotment and therefore has fulfilled its requirement.
- The method used by Charleston School of Law to determine which students receive HEERF II Grant funding under the Coronavirus Response and Relief Supplemental Appropriations Act, 2021, was a review of student need (as determined by FAFSA) as well as obtaining a self-certification statement from eligible students indicating that they incurred qualifying expenses. Students with an expected family contribution (EFC) of 5711 or below received $900, and students with an EFC above 5711 received $587.
- Students were informed in advance of eligibility, provided information as to how to access the self-certification application, and given an estimated timeframe as to when disbursements would occur.
