

Charleston School of Law: Spring 2023 COVID-19 Attendance Policies

Students will receive attendance credit for participating in class by Zoom only with a confirmed, positive COVID-19 test (rapid or PCR).

If you are experiencing any COVID-19 symptoms:

1. Leave (or don't come to) campus.
2. Seek medical care if necessary.
3. Take a rapid, at-home COVID test. Based on the results:

If your test is negative: You are expected to attend classes as scheduled. You will not receive credit for attending via ZOOM. Students who are symptomatic, but test negative are encouraged to consider wearing a well-fitting N-95 or KN-95 mask while around people indoors until they are no longer symptomatic. Free masks are available on campus.

If your test is positive:

1. Isolate for 5 days after the date of your positive test.
2. Seek medical care if necessary.
3. Notify the school by clicking HERE.
4. Attend your classes via Zoom. (Links to Zoom classrooms are in your email or in the CORE Resource Library.)
5. After you complete 5 days of self-isolation, you are expected to return to in-person classes IF you have no symptoms OR your symptoms are improving and you have not had a fever for 24 hours without using medication. If you have a fever on day 6 of your symptoms are not improving, you should seek medical care, email csolcovid@charlestonlaw.edu, continue to isolate, and continue to attend classes by Zoom.
6. After you complete your period of self-isolation and return to classes, fill out the form below in its entirety to request attendance credit for classes you attended on Zoom. Submit the completed form to csolcovid@charlestonlaw.edu

NOTE - If you were exposed to, or had close contact with, someone with COVID-19: Per the latest CDC guidance, you are not required to self-isolate. You will not receive credit for attending classes by Zoom. You should take a rapid test if you feel symptoms and follow the procedures above.

THE ABOVE POLICY APPLIES REGARDLESS OF ONE'S VACCINATION STATUS.
